

Forklift Operator Training for All Brands. An OSHA Requirement !

OSHA 1910-178

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration requires companies to provide operator training a minimum of every 3 years for all lift truck operators. Improperly used forklifts can lead to operator injury and even death. Poor operating habits may cause damage to your facility that can lead to catastrophic failure of racks and structural elements. Accidents involving untrained operators may lead to legal liability and increased insurance costs.

For a limited time we are offering special pricing and promotional savings when you have your operators trained on site by our professionals. W.E. Johnson has been South Florida's forklift dealer for over 59 years providing new and used lift truck sales, service, parts, rentals and operator training. This is a limited opportunity so if you are interested contact: Customer Service at our offices listed below. Forklift operator training is conducted in compliance with the National Safety Council.
